RAPID INTERVENTION

JAMES K. CRAWFORD

JAMES K. CRAWFORD is the Assistant Chief for Midway Fire Rescue in Pawleys Island, South Carolina. He retired in 2010 as the Assistant Chief for the Pittsburgh Bureau of Fire after 20 years of service. He is the past deputy chief of training for the Pennsylvania USAR Strike Team, which he also served as a rescue manager. He has more than 38 years' experience in the career and volunteer fire service. He is the lead H.O.T. instructor for FDIC's "RIT Combat Drills," which he developed. He lectures nationally on rescue, holds several national fire service certifications, and has an associate degree in fire science from Columbia Southern University.
